THE NEWS THIS MORNING.

Foreign.-The House of Commons debated the appointment of the Duke of Connaught to the command at Aldershot, and rejected a motion to reduce the salary of the Commander-in-Chief of France. === Queen Victoria laid the foundation rivalry. stone of a new church near Balmoral.

Weeks, the lawyer who left the city owing more than a million dollars, was virtually in custody in Costa Rica. === Eight deaths and many serious cases from poisoning by toadstools were reported in the city and the suburbs. - Winners at Gravesend: Dr. Hosbrouck, Don Alonzo, Prig, Lamplighter, Frog Dance, Patrician and Roslyn. - Stocks weak in the early dealings and, after sharp a ivances, closed quiet below their highest points. movement plainly was speculative, and the Larop-an selling may not have been of investment securities. Those Senators who oppose repeal seem to be constantly cudgelling their brains for pretexts or excuses by which they can prolong the debate upon the pending bill. The sixth week of the extraordinary session has begun, but there is a total absence of disposition or desire on the part of these men to let the matter come to a head. The result of a vote-if it can be reached-is practically certain, and there is no room for doubt as to the wish of the majority of the people of the country. The trifling and time-consuming policy of the silver Senators is exasperating. The people at large are beginning to have a small opinion of "Senatorial

The difference between edible mushrooms and poisonous toadstools is not infrequently very slight, and it is easy for one to be mistaken for the other. The need of extreme caution in the use of these fungi for food has been enforced in a number of recent cases, and just now is particularly evident. No less than eight deaths from eating toadstools were reported to that task. If it is thus made manifest that yesterday in and near the city, with a number of cases of dangerous illness from the same

According to the figures given out vesterday, 80,000 passengers have been carried West by the one-fare trains; and it is within reason to assume that otherwise the large majority of them would never have seen the great Exposition. Indeed, the railroad companies would doubtless risk little if the number of these trains were increased, for facilities for travelling invariably cause people to travel.

THE VIGILANT'S VICTORY.

The victory of the Vigilant in the third trial was as decisive as her triumph on Saturday over the triangular course, and no one can be surprised that she has been selected as the enp-defender. While the start yesterday was pairs, the race was a magnificent one and tested the best qualities of all four. The Vigilant led from the start, was first at the stakeboat. and gained steadily on the run back. She outfasted and outreached the Colonia, which had kept up closely with her in the first trial and had won the race by a scratch. She excelled the Jubilee at every point, and displayed even greater superiority over the Pilgrim. Her windward work, pointing and running, were equally satisfactory under caditions which were most over competitors, which were well sailed and forced her to do her best, rightly gives her the bonor of defending the cup.

But the Kansas farmer felt that he had done enough for mankind to entitle him to have his freight carried for nothing, so he went into the Legislature and said that, in view of the fact that he was a public benefactor and the capitalist was necessarily a thief-else how could be have got his capital?-the railroads should carry freight at the farmer's prices, whether they earned enough to pay the interest on their bonds or not. The credit system on which the roads were built was for the benefit of the farmer. Then when the farmer wanted ready money he borrowed of the Eastern capitalist on mortgage at the rate of ten or twenty dollars an acre on what he bought for two or three. Having used the money, it occurred to him that there was something wrong in a system under which he could put a ten-dollar-an-acre mortgage on a two-dollar-anacre farm. He was the victim of organized avarice and merciless rapacity. He sent Peffer to the United States Senate to make a row about it and get the Government to buy something for half a dollar and call it a dollar to help him out. They make a mistake, and so does Peffer, about the credit system. It is not solely for the benefit of the Kansas farmer.

New facts are constantly coming to light to show the terrible extent of the damage wrought by the cyclone.

The German Emperor's conduct in talking about holding Alsace-Lorraine with German words, and in parading his armies up and down the French frontier, may be grand, but it is certainly irritating and dangerous. It may be that a great European convulsion is inevitable, but woe to the King or country that lights the fuse!

Lieutenant-Governor Sheehan appears to recog nize the drift of the tide against him in his own city of Enffulo, and is making strenuous attempts to contend against it successfully. One of his schemes is to buy a newspaper in order to offset the influence of the regular Democratic daily in Buffaio, which is decidedly anti-Sheehan. This is likely to prove a costly experiment, but a boss whose power is seriously threatened is bound to leave no stone unturned that may aid him in putting his enemies under. The Buffalo Anti-Sheehanites have made no contest against their toe in the convention caucuses. They are reserving their strength for the polis, when their votes will tell in spite of Sheehan's efforts to control the counting of the ballots. The revolt against bossism in Buffalo is formidable.

New-York's most pressing need is the need of rapid transit. The Commissioners engaged in supplying this need are now well advanced on the third year of their work, and thus far we have little to show for it. It is much to be hoped that their present spurt will be productive of results of the right sort.

But when he arranges a plan for postal delivery by means of the bicycle he is ninging at what is entirely out of reach, so far as nine-tenths of the population are concerned.

London, Sept. 11.—The choice of the new Vicery of India no doubt came as a great surprise. The selection of General Sir Henry Norman was en-tirely unexpected and has yet to be explained. It was unexpected in the first place, because it seemed so unlikely that Mr. Gladstone, with a many hungry followers, should have gone to the ranks of the really hard-working, deserving of cials, instead of choosing some callow peer with a reputation still to make or lose at the expense of the Indian Empire. Again, the surprise is all the greater that Mr. Gladstone has gone near doing very wise and judicious thing. He may not have got exactly the best man, but he is not far of It has been generally agreed for some time past that at the present juncture a soldier would be the ideal Viceroy. It has been urged that Lord Wolseley stood facile princeps among these as the strongest and ablest, if not the most experienced man for the post. No doubt Lord Roberts could show still stronger qualification as regards longer and more intimate acquaintance with India, where he has done the whole of his excellent service till now; but this apart; and although it is always invidious to draw comparisons, there can be no question which is the better man of the two. Lord Wolseley is undoubtedly the superior in breadth grasp and intellect, and he has a far deeper inight into men and affairs.

There was, however, little likelihood that either of these distinguished Generals would find favor with Mr. Gladstone. Apart from their known political leanings, their views, it is well known, are too pronounced to please the Premier, and neither would have willingly accepted his cautious, not to say retrograde, policy on the question of the Northwest frontier. General Norman, on the other hand, is generally believed to be a warm supporter of Mr. Gladstone in this as in every other respect. Now he gets his reward, said against the "Grand Old Man," he can seldom be charged with neglecting his friends

THE PRINCE OF WALES'S MOVEMENTS.

The Prince of Wales, having abandoned his intention of visiting Denmark, left Homburg for England on Sunday and arrived at Marlborough House yesterday morning. The Prince will stay in town a day or two before going to Scotland, and he is to pay a brief visit to the Queen at Balmoral before joining the Duke and Duchess of Fife's party at New Mar Lodge. He was a few days ago at Vancouver's Island. The young Archduke is to publish an elaborate narrative of his travels, with photographic illustrations.

THE ALDEESHOT COMMAND.

It is surprising how much ignorance is displayed by those who have criticised the appointment of the Duke of Connaught to the Aldershot command. There never was any question of General Roberts's appointment. General Roberts did not wish for employment on his return from India, having been recommended by his medical advisers to seek a rest after his year's service in the East, and he would not have accepted the Aldershot harge under any circumstances, even had he been eligible, which he was not. Lord Roberts has been visiting his father's old regiment, the 1st Battallon of the Royal Munster Fusileers, in Dublin. He was born in the regiment when it was the last Bengal Fusileers, his father, the late General Sir Abraham Roberts, having served in it many years, and afterward having held the colonelcy until his

AN INTERESTING BIOGRAPHY FORTHCOMING. The fogers Brothers' combination was presented at the Imperial Music Hall list evening in comparation with Mr. Kraus's popular European stars. The bill gave the heartlest satisfaction, to judge by the applause and encores. The Rogers Brothers were warmly welcomed as old friends and entertainers. The diminuitive Speck Brothers, in a comic sparring contest and other athletic accomplishments, were funny, and the musical miniery of Mackle and Walker was exceptionally good, while the humor of Barding and Ah Self's antics was much appreciated. Other new features were O'Brien and Redaing, in a sketch; Reto, an aerial contortionist; a panoramic trish specialty by the Garrisons; Emille Peare, ballad-singer; and Swift and Chase, a musical team. Noveities were also introduced by Marie Collins, Cissy Lind, the Avolos, the Tacchis, Kittle Clayton and Mile, Delmore, the serpentine dancer.
